6 - 8 JULY 2012
TUTOR: GAIL HARKER

From Digital Prints to Stitched Art

6 - 8 July 2012

Wonder what to do with your digital photos that you would like to extend into textile art? This course will take the mystery out of printing on fabric and what to do with the printed fabric to take it beyond the printed image.

Work from your own photographs or original artwork. There will be opportunities to see and try various methods of creating printed fabrics for enrichment. Layers of sheer fabrics will be used to increase and enhance tonality of your print. Stitching by hand and/or machine will be one of our starting points. Students will have options to express individuality in their artistic approach and will be coached on the methods that they would like to pursue for their printed artwork.

$399 (US)

A non-refundable deposit of $100 will hold your place until 1 April 2012, at which time the full tuition is due.

COURSE SCHEDULE

Friday, 6 July	9:00 - 6:00
Saturday, 7 July	9:00 - 6:00
Sunday, 8 July	9:00 - 3:00

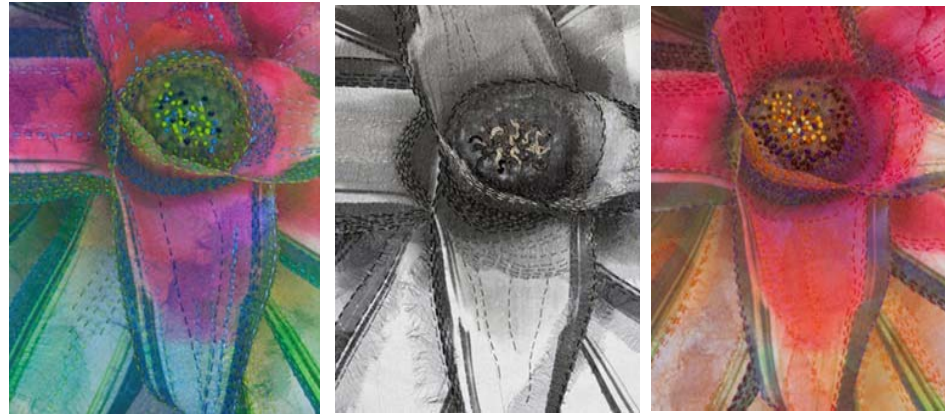

Approximate lunch hour will be 12:30 - 1:30 p.m.

Photographs and other Supplies

You can supply your own photos (although we have many at the studio for anyone who would like to work from Gail's photographic library.) Students can send their selected digital photos by e-mail or CD to the center in advance of the class. You may bring your own sewing machine or borrow one at the studio. There will be a package of fabric and material supplied at the class, in addition to class notes. The lab fee will be $35.00, payable at the class. You will also receive a short supply list of other materials you will need for the course. Call or e-mail Gail if you have questions about the course.

Skill Level

Beginners or students of any level will feel comfortable in this course. No prior experience is necessary.

This class was the best instruction on how to move forward with digital print on fabric to a textile art piece. Since the class, I have used these techniques to create a textile print series.
