EXPERIMENTAL HAND STITCH

© Maria Winner

Our courses are well known for their creative, contemporary approach to embroidery through basic design and color. This course serves as a basic introduction to the vast world of embroidery. Techniques and stitches will be imaginatively worked using the elements of design.

Using your own hand-painted fabric and threads, you will create a variety of small, embroidered samples. You will learn about the following:

- Dyeing fabric and threads
- A wide variety of techniques and stitches: including couched threads, chain, button-hole, feather, fly stitch, knotted stitches, straight stitches as well as edging stitches
- Color study
- Needles and threads
- Stitching on paper
- Effective Presentation

A workbook of classroom notes with color photos will be provided to all students of the Gail Harker Creative Studies Center.

You will create a small book of stitches complete with binding. The variety of stitch samples will provide a source of inspiration from which to work for years to come.

This is a Gail Harker Certificate Course. Time will be allowed for each student to complete the samples and notes that will be used to assess work for the award of the certificate. All postage costs will be the responsibility of the student.
